Synopsis

Little Legends* is the fun-packed official AFL junior fiction series.

Little Legends follows Oz, Ellie and Sanjay Little, star players for the Fresca Bay Falcons, on a series of hilarious and action-packed adventures that celebrate the great game of Australian Rules.

When the Falcons win a prestigious lightning footy tournament in its centennial year, they receive a special cup to commemorate. The Falcons are invited to the MCG sports museum for the unveiling of the special Cup, but as the cup is missing! It's up to Ellie, Oz and Sanjay to figure out where it went ... and discover what other secrets the mighty MCG holds.

An Australia Reads exclusive story.

Recommended Ages: 6-11 | For Grades: One – Four

Themes: Family | Friendship | Belonging | Teamwork | Problem Solving | Humour

About the Book Creators

Suggested Activities

Before Reading

- Discuss the cover illustrations with your students. Ask them to make predictions about the story based on the cover illustration. What do they think the story might be about?
- Read the blurb. Do your students have any questions about the story after reading the blurb?
- How have student predictions changed or been influenced by the blurb?
- Ask students to make predictions about what other secrets the MCG might hold.
- Ask students to make notes of their predictions to refer to later. They might wish to do this in a reading journal, or as a class activity using post it notes or a shared white board.

After Reading

- Ask students to write a review about AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup, or to make a podcast recording recounting the story. This might also work as an oral presentation to the class supported by a Prezi or a PowerPoint presentation.
- Ask students whom of all the characters would they want for a friend? Why? What would they do or talk about together?
- Ask students to keep a diary as if they were a character in AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup. Write down key events that happen during the story and reflect on how they affected the character and why.
- Ask students to write a short story featuring a chosen character from AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup and themselves as a character. How would they work together? Would they be friends or enemies? What adventures would they have?
- Ask students to make a book trailer for AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup. Reference for teachers <https://englishteaching101.com/book-trailer-project/>
- Ask students to write a brief prediction or even a synopsis of where they think the next book in this series might begin. Which characters might be important to the plot line? How do they predict the series might end?
- Ask students to write a 3-minute skit script enacting a pivotal moment between characters in AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup.

Letter from a character

Ask students to choose a character from AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup. Imagining they are that chosen character and they are in their situation, take this opportunity to express thoughts and feelings about events in AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup.

6 Word Story

Using only six words, sum up AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup and its story line. You may choose to do this from the point of view of one of the characters.

Character Voki

Choose two characters from AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup and create talking avatars for them using Voki.com. Go to <https://www.voki.com/> and log-in or create a Voki account. (Note: If you are not logged in, you will not be able to embed your Voki in your blog/keynote.)

Choose two characters from the book. Create a Voki for those characters. You're writing the speech in first person as if the character is talking about himself/herself. Include the following details in your speech: Three text details that describe their behaviours, how they feel, what they might be thinking about one another/their situation, their appearance, etc. Due to the word count limitations in each Voki, you may need to do a few Vokis for your characters to complete the speech requirements.

Thinking about the characters

Go to <http://oneword.com/> and after reading the instructions, click 'go'.

You will have ONE minute. With the word that appears at the top of the screen, choose to do one of the following: Write a piece of dialogue between two characters using the word provided OR Write as much as you can about a character using the word provided.

Do NOT submit your writing. Instead, highlight what you have written, copy and paste OR take a screenshot of the page. Paste this into a page in your Digital Scrapbook. Don't forget to copy in the URL and date your work.

Hot Seat Activity

This activity asks students to inhabit the skin of a particular character. There are many variations on this teaching strategy: students can interview each other in groups, one student can be interviewed by a 'studio audience' or interested student journalists can prepare questions for their classmates.

This strategy aims to immerse students in the worlds of the characters and encourage them to see 'through their eyes'. Students gain an understanding of the complexity of characters, with plenty of classroom discussion about why a character would (or wouldn't) do or say something, helping students to understand the importance of 'real' characters in narrative.

Variations:

Put a number of students in the hot seat as one character.

Put students in the hot seat as a character and ask them questions to do with real life.

Ask hot seat students about their memories.

Ask hot seat students to tell 'two truths and a lie'.

Put students on the spot with no preparation time.

Allow students time to prepare their questions and answers.

Write a letter to another character 'in character'.

Write a letter home 'in character'.

A note on reading from our book creators

'Reading is a way for us to escape and explore. It's how we process and understand the world around us - and the worlds we don't know yet.

Reading is freedom and its benefits are limitless.'

NICOLE HAYES

'By simply picking up a book we can experience adventures in other worlds, solve mysteries, fall in love AND defeat the baddies, all from the comfort of our couch.

Humans are hardwired to share stories.'

While Reading

There are numerous approaches to novel study that are based around group reading, independent reading, literature circles and teachers reading aloud. Whichever method you choose (or methods, as multiple approaches are often an effective way to cater for varying academic needs in the classroom), using a double-entry or dialectical journal is a worthwhile skill for students to grasp.

To create a double-entry journal (DEJ), students divide a page into two columns; one being 'Quote from the Text', the other 'My Thinking'. Depending on the focus you choose to adopt for your class/student (and using multiple foci is possible), the DEJ is a solid summative assessment piece that displays the thinking of each student in relation to the chosen passages. Encourage accurate recording, use of quotation marks and inclusion of page numbers.

Sample Foci:

Recording unfamiliar words: By recording words that students have not encountered often enough to remember their definition, students can be encouraged to develop the strategy of finding the meanings of words in context. Although this is a simple strategy, it forms a basic skill that equips students for future reading and thinking.

Recording interesting phrases/passages: In the first column, students are asked to write down words, clauses, sentences or passages they find interesting, powerful, humorous etc. In the second column they detail why they chose that particular passage and their thoughts on it.

Prediction: Students are asked to make predictions about characters and plot etc. based on their reading. Ask them to justify their thinking by explaining why they think something is going to happen in the way they have predicted.

Visualising: Students record the parts of the text that inspire them to visualise. They explain what they find easy to visualise by quoting lines from the text that describe what they're experiencing. They can also move beyond visualising to include the other senses, recording lines that encourage them to imagine smelling, tasting, touching and hearing.

Making Connections

Using a DEJ to make connections uses some tried and true teaching strategies. There are a number of connections students can make simply by recording the passage or the quote from the text and using the grid below (it could be a good idea to make a classroom poster for reference).

| Connection | Example |
|---|---|
| Text to Self | 'This reminds of a time when I ...' |
| Text to World | 'This reminds me of Hollywood/Alaska/Chinese acrobats ...' |
| Text to Text | 'I remember a character reacting like this before' ... activates prior knowledge |

Character Mapping

Character maps provide students with visual portrayals of the characters they meet in AFL Little Legends: The Missing Cup. They provide key information for character analysis and comparison.

When creating a character map, students should begin by placing the character's name in the centre of the map. Students can then identify a character trait or quality to place in the oval on each branch of the map. Each character trait or quality must be supported with evidence from the novel.

Examples of the evidence that supports each trait or quality form the sub-branches of each branch of the character map. This evidence is placed in the circles that branch out from each oval.

Sociogram

A sociogram takes character maps one step further and shows the relationships between characters. As students read the novel and encounter new characters, they create a box for each one. In each character box, students name and describe in point form what they know about the character. They then use arrows between the boxes to highlight and describe the relationships between characters. Again, this becomes part of the process of reading and responding to the novel. As they read, students will become more aware of character development and how the characters are interrelated. At the end of the novel, they will have a complete overview of all characters. A sample Sociogram can be seen here https://www.researchgate.net/figure/Sociogram-of-character-book-ties-within-10-comic-books-of-the-Marvel-Universe_fig2_342860839
