Lots of the activities and discussion topics in these teacher's notes are deliberately left open to encourage pupils to develop independent thinking around the book. This will help pupils build confidence in their ability to problem solve as individuals and also as part of a group.

The Front Cover

Why do you think Amelia Earhart achieved fame and recognition?

The Blurb

What extra information does the blurb give you?

The Endpapers

What do the shapes represent on the end papers? Why do you think the illustrator chose this colour?

Which bird would you choose to be? Why that particular bird?

What do you think it would feel like to fly?

Collect words that help to describe this, using a thesaurus to extend your range of choice.

How does this picture make you feel?

Collect words connected with flying and create a diamante poem:

- (1) Single noun or pronoun
- (2) Two adjectives describing the word in Line 1
- (3) Three verbs ending in -ing that relate to the word in Line 1
- (4) Two nouns or a phrase relating to Line 1, and two nouns or a phrase relating to Line 7
- (5) Three verbs ending in -ing that are antonyms of the word in Line 1
- (6) Two adjectives that are antonyms
- (7) Another noun

Ground

Air

In pairs:

One takes the role of a reporter and the other Amelia.

Hot seat Amelia to ask her about flying.

Remember to take time to prepare what you might say first.

Convert 14,000 feet to meters and then miles. Imagine that distance going upwards!

Find the Atlantic Ocean on a map or globe.

How do you think it would feel setting off on such a voyage?

Look at the illustration. What technique does the illustrator use to convey the sense of enormity of the ocean?

Find and watch some video footage from the vantage point of a small plane flying and write down any observations you make.

Write a short descriptive piece about what you can see. Think about using similes and metaphors to evoke a vivid picture in the reader's mind.

Talk about what you can see and how it makes you feel, jotting down ideas. Then extend your piece of descriptive writing.

What is your opinion of the journey that Amelia and her navigator undertook?

What is Amelia flying past in this picture?

What does the author mean by 'Amelia wasn't afraid of living a thousand adventures'?

Why do you think she never returned?

Do you think Amelia's advice is right? "If you want to do something, do it."

What happens if you don't try?

Does it matter if you try and then fail?

Why do you think the illustrator has depicted the plane as a dot-to-dot among the stars?

Create your own dot-to-dot star picture.

AMELIA EARHART

(Born 1897 • Disappeared 1937)

1920	1928	1932	1937

Amelia Earhart was the most famous female pilot of the twentieth century. She first became interested in planes after seeing an air show when she was nearly twenty years old. A little later, pilot Frank Pihlak gave her a ride in a biplane. From that moment on, she said, "I knew I had to fly." Amelia took lessons and bought her first plane six months later. She used it to set a new women's world record by flying up to 14,000 feet. She was the first woman to fly over the Atlantic, first with a mechanic and a pilot, and later by herself. In 1929, Amelia was the first president of the Ninety-Nines, an organisation that supported female pilots. In 1935, she became the first person to fly solo across the Pacific Ocean. But Amelia was always keen for a new challenge. In 1937, she decided to try and fly around the world, a total of 29,000 miles. On July 2nd, she was trying to reach Howland Island in the mid-Pacific when she reported that their gas was running low. Soon later, all communications from the plane stopped. There was a massive rescue attempt, but Amelia and her plane had vanished. In 1938, a lighthouse was built on Howland Island in her memory, and today her bravery is celebrated around the world.
